Missilemen Speak Against Undue Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's two top missilemen protested Tuesday that inter-service arguments and repeated reappraisals are keeping the U.S. space program trailing behind that of the Soviet Union.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, who is stepping out soon as chief of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, almost shouted as he told a New York news conference: "I'll personally buy any solution that will cut out the arguing and debate and get people back to work."

Dr. Werner von Braun, chief scientist at the Army's Ballistic Missile Agency, took somewhat the same tack before a Washington audience.

"Instead of wasting time and energy in ponderous reappraisals and re-examinations," the German-born rocket scientist declared, "we ought to pitch in to get the show on the road and get into space."

As von Braun and Medaris spoke out separately, it appeared a decision might be imminent on the fate of their Army ballistic missile agency, with its 2,300 scientists and technicians. The agency is at Huntsville, Ala.

Long Tour

Just back from a month-long tour of the Pacific, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy indicated to newsmen a decision will be made soon on whether the Army agency will be run by the civilian National Aeronautics and Space Administration, or kept under Defense Department control.

The final decision on its future is up to President Eisenhower. He arranged a meeting at the White House Wednesday morning to discuss the space and missile programs.

Both von Braun and Medaris pleaded for a full-speed-ahead drive by the United States in rocketry and space work.

Estimating the Soviets now have a lead of about five years, Medaris added: "The only way to catch up is to go faster than they go, and I don't know how fast that is. I would say we'd better just go like hell."

Von Braun said that unless this country speeds up its present "leisurely pace" in the space race "I suspect we will have to pass Russian customs when we finally reach the moon."

Medaris said his decision to resign his command, effective next Jan. 31, was not a matter of protest or personal dissatisfaction.

Margaret May Marry Canadian

LONDON (AP)—A French magazine added weight Tuesday to rumors that Princess Margaret will marry John Turner, a handsome Canadian lawyer, Margaret is 29, Turner 30.

The Paris magazine Jours de France said the princess has given approval of her sister, Queen Elizabeth I, to marry the Canadian and that an announcement is coming soon.

But at Clarence House, the princess' London home, a secretary said no such announcement is impending.

Jours de France said the only thing holding back an announcement is the recent engagement of Peter Townsend, the ex-flier whom Margaret formally rejected in 1955 because of his divorced status.

The union and the basic steel industry have been negotiating off and on since May 5. They're still far apart on the basic issues of wages and contract work rules.

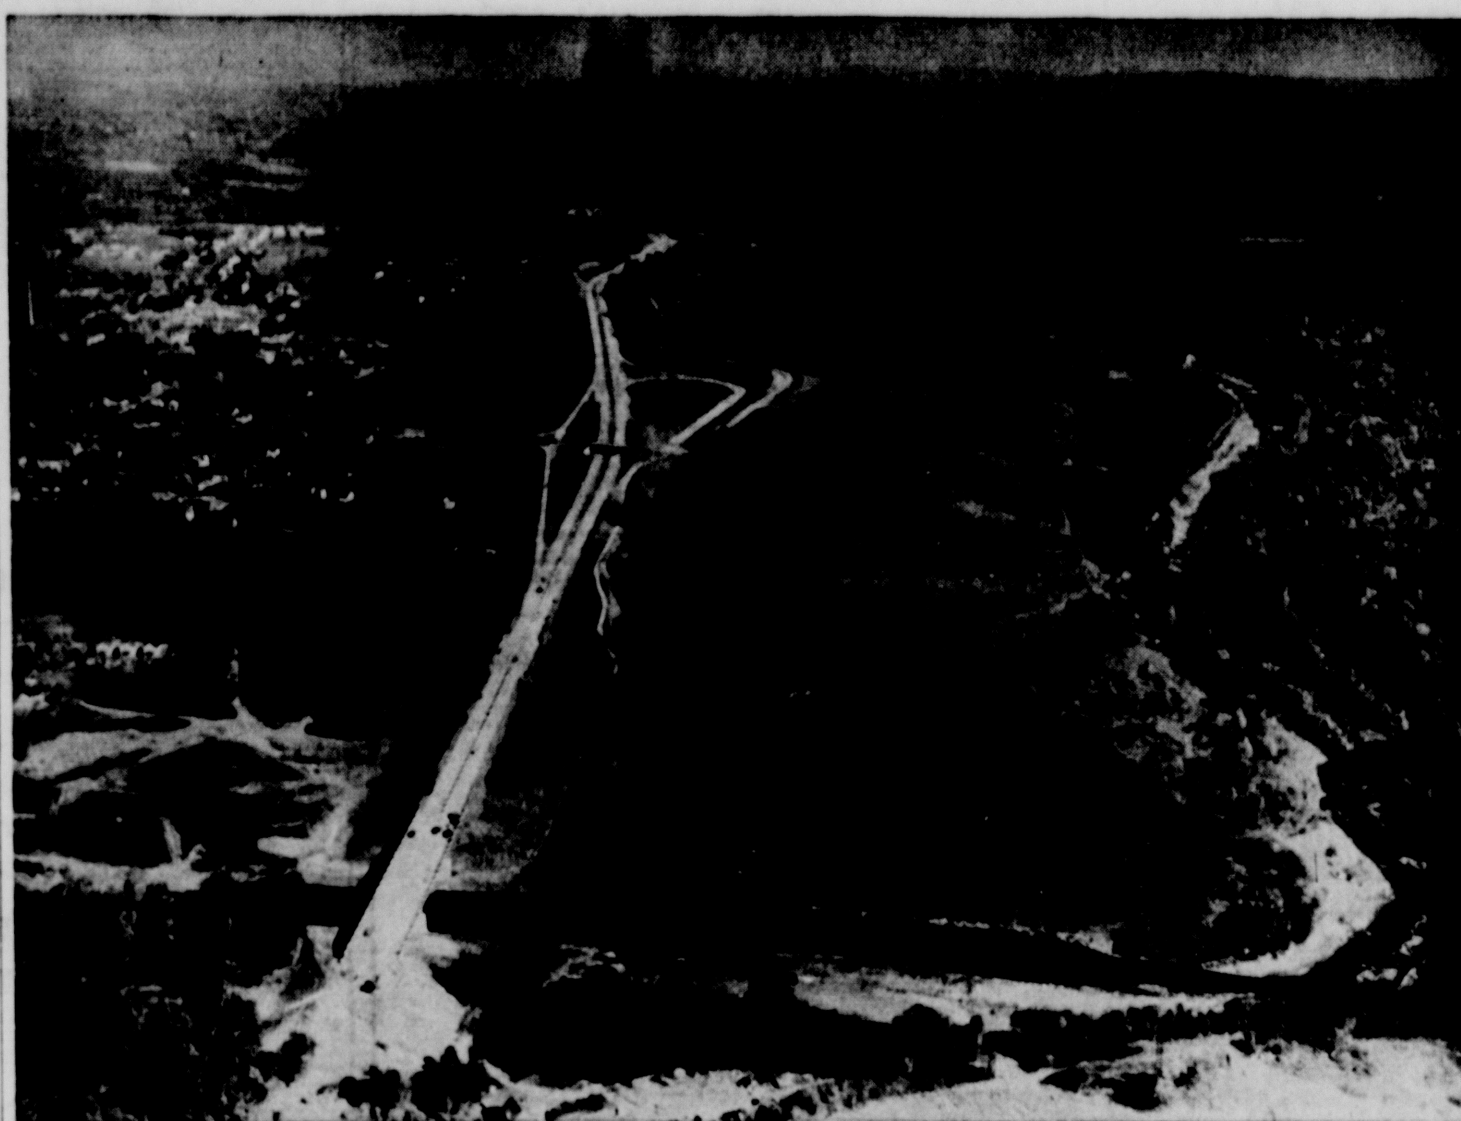

Latest union proposal was for a wage-fringe benefit package which it valued at 20 cents an hour per man over a two-year period. The industry said the demands would cost about 32½ cents an hour.

The industry offered a three-year contract.

believe that it is all right for Chinese Communists to kill Tibetans but that it is a provocation for us to talk about it," he declared.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, had declared the Assembly was being used to fan enmity and hatred for Communist China.

Lodge asked the Assembly to approve a mildly worded Irish-Malayan resolution calling for respect for the fundamental religious and civil rights of the Tibetan people.

Union Chief Indicted For Contempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maurice H. Hutcheson, president of the 850,000-member Carpenters Union, was indicted Tuesday on contempt charges growing out of his refusal to tell the Senate racke-ets committee whether he had misused union funds.

A federal grand jury also returned contempt of Congress indictments against three other men charged with failing to give the committee information it sought last year during its investigations of alleged wrongdoing in labor and management.

One was William Presser of Cleveland, top Teamsters Union official in Ohio.

The others were Pete Licavoli of Detroit, reputedly leader of the old "Purple Gang" in Detroit, and Ernest Mark Sign, New York editor in the labor publication field.

Maximum Penalty

The maximum penalty on conviction of contempt of Congress is a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Hutcheson, 62, a vice president of the AFL-CIO, already is under indictment in an Indiana highway land scandal. That case has not come to trial, although the indictment was returned in Indianapolis 20 months ago. The federal indictment alleges 18 instances of contempt by Hutcheson, who appeared before the racke-ets committee in June 1958. At that time, he refused to answer questions about his financial dealings or to say whether he had misused union funds for personal benefit.

In a letter to fellow members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council last February, Hutcheson disclaimed any misuse of union funds and pledged to abide by the federation's ethical practices codes.

Lawrence Signs
Obscenity Law

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. David L. Lawrence Tuesday signed into law a bill banning the sale or distribution of obscene literature.

The measure amends the state's penal code to conform with objection of the State Supreme Court, which declared the existing obscenity law unconstitutional July 2.

Legislation Opposed

HERSHEY (AP) — The Pennsylvania Assn. of Colleges and Universities Tuesday unanimously opposed legislation banning discrimination in college admittance because of race, color or creed.

Five Political Candidates Tell Taxpayers

Of Opposition To East Borough Sewer Plan

THE EAST Stroudsburg Taxpayers Assn. was told last night that five candidates for Borough Council in the borough have expressed opposition to the proposed new sewer system.

Oral and written acknowledgments were received from the following candidates: William Wallie, fifth ward; Mrs. Ann Travis, fourth ward; George Butz, second ward; Charles Buessley, second ward; and Pearly Hunt, fifth ward, taxing officials received.

In addition to this, Jack Hinelein, at whose home the meeting was held, reported that more than 1,000 signatures have been affixed to the petitions circulating in the borough opposing the system.

All of those at last night's meeting said they opposed the system at the present time in view of the fact that the borough is presently involved with the East Stroudsburg Area School Jointure in the construction of a new high school costing over $3,000,000.

A spokesman said that since the figures given for the system were also about $3,000,000 this would be more than the assessed evaluation of the borough.

The group also expressed interest in getting the proposed flood control system on the Brodheads Creek under construction as soon as possible. However, they reported they desired an equitable solution to the impasse that has been created over the prices quoted to some of the landowners along the creek.

It was announced that the group would ask the landowners and the Commonwealth to arrive at such a solution as soon as possible so as to expedite the start of construction.

Election of officers, it was announced, will be held at the next meeting to take place Tuesday, Oct. 26.

The group was told that the attorney for the association, James Scanlon, has contacted the Borough Solicitor, Charles Bensinger, and a report on the status of the sewer system will be given at the next meeting.

Gen. Marshall Buried In Quiet Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall, architect of victory in the world's greatest war, was buried Tuesday with what must have been the simplest funeral ever given a man of his rank.

Only members of his family and honorary pallbearers were present as the old warrior was laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery. His grave overlooks the capitol of the government he served so long in war and in peace.

Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, who have been close to each other, were in the same chapel pew, drawn together by the debts they owed to Marshall.

Former President Truman, who had arrived first, reached across and shook hands with the President when he arrived. Both looked solemn, thoughtful.

Canon Luther D. Miller, former chief of chaplains, U. S. Army, prayed: "We thank Thee for the memories which gather about this great life."

Fort Myer Chapel

To the 200 who had gathered in the small Ft. Myer chapel the memories must indeed have been great.

For Eisenhower there must have been thoughts of how Marshall, as chief of staff, had chosen him for the fateful role of commander in Europe, a role that was to lift an obscure Army officer to international acclaim.

When Marshall died Friday, after many an ailment and 78 full years, Eisenhower proclaimed national mourning.

For Truman there must have been thoughts of how Marshall returned from retirement to serve his administration as trouble shooter to China, as secretary of state, as secretary of defense.

Before the services began Truman had paid his tribute to Marshall. He had been asked to say a few words for television cameras.

The former president's summation of the general: "The greatest of the great in our time."

Yet anyone glancing casually into the services would never have guessed this.

True, many of this nation's high officials, past and present, were there. But the usual dramatic flourishes that go with top military funerals were absent.

There wasn't even the horse-drawn caisson to carry the body. Marshall had said he wanted it kept simple. And it was.

Outside the chapel a band played "Faith of Our Fathers" as the flag-draped casket was drawn to the front door.

Even the modest-size crowd did not follow the casket to the grave, since privacy was asked for the burial.

Eisenhower slipped out one side door; Truman another.

The family and the honorary pallbearers rode to the spot where a simple tomb stood. Only one word was on it: "Marshall."

Brief Rites

The final rites were brief. Here on the ground once owned by another famous general, Robert E. Lee, the last words were said. They could not be heard by the reporters, but a mocking bird sang beautifully in the glorious October afternoon.

The services were a military adaptation of the Episcopal Church form.

The five-star flag of the five-star general waved in the breeze. The U.S. flag that covered his casket was removed, to be given his widow.

A 19-gun salute roared out across the valley. Rifles cracked out another volley.

The sweet, sad sound of "Taps" then came for the man who once had the welfare of millions of men under his command.

And, then, just at the end, came a gesture unarmy and deeply touching.

Mrs. Marshall, dressed in black and heavily veiled, stepped forward and dropped a small bunch of flowers on the mahogany colored casket. She turned away and the others followed.

The old general, who studied war and won a Nobel Peace Prize for his work with the Marshall Plan, was left alone on the quiet hillside.

Condition Of Lone Survivor 'Satisfactory'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Five tiny girls, the third set of quintuplets in United States history, were born to an Air Force lieutenant's wife Tuesday. Four of them died within 9½ hours after their birth.

"Baby B," so designated to indicate the alphabetical order of birth, died at 6:40 p.m. (CDT). "Baby A" died at 7:10 p.m., "Baby E" at 10:30 p.m. and "Baby C" at 11 p.m.

Doctors said the condition of "Baby D" remained satisfactory.

The announcement of the second-born's death came shortly after the father, Lt. Charles Hannan, 29, was called from a news conference. He had just told reporters of his faith in prayer.

"I have said lots of prayers," the youthful looking flying navigator told reporters. "My wife has, too, and it has done lots of good before and now."

The news conference was interrupted when Hannan was called away—to be told of "Baby B's" death.

The mother, Cecelia Hannan, is 27 and like Hannan a native of Texas. She was doing well. They were childhood sweethearts in Taylor, Tex., schools before their marriage.

"I'm flabbergasted," Hannan said when first told he was the father of quintuplets. And at the news conference he kept running his hands over his face as if he still couldn't believe it.

First Time

The tiny girls—the first set of girl quintuplets ever born in the United States—were three months premature. Chances of quints surviving, even if full term, are poor.

Two other sets of quintuplets have been born in the United States but both sets were boys—and in both cases the quints did not survive beyond infancy.

The only living quintuplets in the world are the Diligents of Buenos Aires, Argentina, who celebrated their 16th birthday last July 15. The Dionne quintuplets of Canada survived for two decades—until one, Emilie, died at 20 in 1964.

The Hannans were told several days ago they could expect quintuplets. But they kept their secret well. The births at Lackland Air Force Base Hospital were a complete surprise to the public.

All five babies cried lustily when they were born. Attending physicians said their color and breathing were good. But they had not had a chance to develop fully. The second-born, weighed after death, scaled at only 1 pound, 5½ ounces. The second to die weighed 1 pound, 9 ounces.

Maj. S. M. Appleman, Air Force information officer, insisted none of the infants was weighed at birth. A hospital spokesman had said earlier the first-born weighed 18 ounces. Appleman said this was an estimate—that no delay in getting the babies into incubators was risked.

The mother was put under sedation. Hospital attendants said they will not permit reporters to interview her or take pictures until Wednesday at least.

At the news conference Hannan was tired but optimistic. News that not all the quints had survived still had not been announced and Hannan talked happily of buying cribs and bottles.

An only child himself and of Irish descent, Hannan said there are no records of multiple births in either his family or his wife's. She was born Cecelia Thonig at Copeland, Tex., of German ancestry.

Although he knew quintuplets were likely, their sex was a surprise. "Thank heaven," said Hannan, "that we wanted daughters."

Ike To Play Golf

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower made a sudden decision Tuesday to fly to Augusta, Ga., today for five or six days of golf and rest.

Although he knew quintuplets were likely, their sex was a surprise. "Thank heaven," said Hannan, "that we wanted daughters."

Mrs. Agnes Mae Berger, 78, of Kresgeville, died yesterday morning while enroute to Palmerton Hospital. Page Three.

The acting commander of the Portsmouth naval base, Capt. Carl A. Johnson, said the Navy is investigating and that the FBI has been notified.

In Washington, the Navy said damage first was discovered Oct. 15, appears to be confined to the electric system, and does not extend to the nuclear reactor plant.

Navy statements followed disclosure by the Portsmouth Herald it had learned of a series of incidents involving "sabotage-type" damage to the craft.

The Herald story said unofficial sources reported there have been quite a few recent incidents of damage to vital parts of the Nautilus and also a series of fires.

It mentioned broken pipes and cut cables and said such incidents would seriously endanger both the submarine and her crew.

United States Accuses Reds With Using Threat Attempts

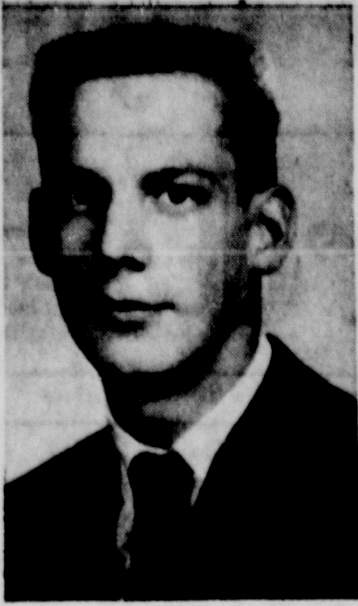

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States charged Tuesday that the Communists were using strong words in an attempt to frighten the United Nations out of discussing the Tibetan problem.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge made the accusation in the 82-nation General Assembly after the Soviet Union had declared U. N. consideration of the issue was a shameful farce that would only aggravate the cold war.

Seven Traffic Cases Decided In Court

SEVEN cases involving traffic violations were disposed of by Judge Fred W. Davis yesterday in Monroe County Court.

Martha Eppley, 45, Stroudsburg, pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. She was sentenced to pay a $300 fine and costs with $200 at once and the remainder at $50 a month.

Louis B. Dougherty and John P. Fritz, both of whom appealed summary convictions for speeding, were found guilty and sentenced to pay $10 fines and costs.

Appeal

Clifford Saffin, appealing from a summary conviction on failure to yield the right-of-way, was found not guilty. He was represented by Atty. James R. Marsh.

Charles Gustave Smith, appealing a summary conviction for speeding, was released when the court granted a motion to quash the indictment. He was represented by Atty. Edwin L. Krawitz.

The case of John M. Carr, appealing a summary conviction for speeding, was continued to Nov. 2.

Arthur Bersh, who waived a preliminary hearing on a speeding charge, was found guilty and sentenced to pay $10 and costs.

Change In White Lines

HARRISBURG (AP)—Three major changes will be made in white lines painted on roads in an effort to improve traffic safety, Highways Secretary Park H. Martin said Sunday.

Double solid white lines will be painted on two-lane roads as well as four-lane highways to indicate "no passing" areas; white edged lines will be painted on highways more than 20 feet wide and markings on approaches to "no passing" zones will be extended from 500 to 800 feet.

Area Halloween Parade To Be Entitled 'Out Of This World'

Line Of March Set For Event

"OUT OF THIS WORLD", featuring everything from spunkies to goblins, will be the theme for the Halloween Parade scheduled for Thursday night, Oct. 29.

The Pocono Mountains Jaycees and businessmen of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg have decided to go "all out" for the parade and block party to be held at Courthouse Square.

Judges stands will be set up in both boroughs, one on Crystal St., East Stroudsburg and another in front of Wyckoff's on Main St., Stroudsburg. The parade will begin on N. Courtland St. in East Stroudsburg and end at Courthouse Square.

A block party will begin immediately and special awards will be presented to costumed persons.

Joint Committee
The joint committee of the Jaycees and the Businessmen announced that unique plans are being made for bigger and better awards than in the past. The awards will be announced later.

Civic organizations are being encouraged to enter floats by the sponsors of the parade. The League of Women Voters have already responded with an entry.

Any group or individual who anticipates entering a float must contact Dave Bernbaum no later than 5 p. m. Monday, Oct. 26. Formation will begin at 6:30 p. m. on Maple Ave. East Stroudsburg.

$25,963 Sent To Schools In County

THE United States Office of Education has forwarded payments totaling $25,963 to seven school districts in Monroe County. It was announced yesterday by John C. Litts, county superintendent of schools.

The payments were made under Public Law 874 providing aid to impacted areas. Litts explained that the federal government pays a percentage of the school costs in districts where children of federal employees attend schools.

Directly To Districts
The funds were distributed directly to the districts through the State Department of Public Instruction. The annual payments were based on 1958-1959 enrollments, Litts said.

Coolbaugh Township, site of the Signal Corps Depot, a federal installation, received the largest amount, $11,195. Other districts received these payments:

Mount Pocono Borough, $3,184; Barrett Township, $3,115; Tobyhanna Township, $2,229; Paradise Township, $2,932; Pocono Township, $2,150; and Jackson Township, $1,158.

Chest Assists Visiting Nurses

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the seventh in a series of 12 articles covering each of the agencies benefitting from the annual Community Chest campaign now underway.

THE Visiting Nurse Assn. of Monroe County is one of the most important agencies receiving a large portion of its operating expenses through the Community Chest.

Last year this Red Feather agency, through its two nurses, visited a total of 1,960 homes throughout the county. Of this number, 1,655 were for actual sick persons while 305 were for health supervision. It was reported yesterday by Mrs. Lorraine Krakowsky, nursing supervisor.

In addition, a total of 22 infant classes were held.

The nurses traveled a total of 15,322 miles throughout the county during their rounds.

Provisions
The service provides the part-time services of a registered, professional nurse to all citizens of the county. The nurse will give nursing care to all members of the family in the home—for the aged, long term invalids, mothers with new babies, and convalescents returning home from the hospital.

The nurses also change dressings, give hypodermics or special treatments, instruct the family in aiding the patient between the nurse's visits, instruct the mother in planning for a healthy, happy home.

All calls of the association are answered, but after the first call visits are continued only under the direction of a physician.

Fees for the visits are three dollars per hour, 50 cents for each quarter hour exceeding the first hour, four dollars for appointment service and $1.50 for giving hypodermics.

The Community Chest gives $6,000 per year, or about half the total operating costs of the association.

Plans Set For Classes On Motors

PLANS for classes on motors were discussed at a meeting of the Ridge Runners Hot Rod Club last night at the Fifth St., Stroudsburg, clubhouse.

The first class, on rebuilding an overhead valve motor, will be next Tuesday. The following class will be on rebuilding an automatic transmission.

It was announced that the outside of the clubhouse was painted last week and a work committee will report to the clubhouse for work on it and the club car Sunday.

The group voted against formation of an auxiliary of suggested by some members. An inspection of members' cars was planned for the near future.

Schedule
Parades scheduled for the immediate future are:

Tonight, 7:30, Palmerton Halloween parade. Stevens said the Kadets will assemble at the American Legion home in East Stroudsburg and leave at 6 p. m.

Saturday, Oct. 24, 7:30 p. m.—Emmanuel Halloween parade.

Saturday, Oct. 31, 7:30 p. m.—Nazareth Halloween parade.

Society In Review Of New Plans

A REVIEW of the recommendations of the Monroe County committee on the study of local needs for the White House Conference on Children's and Youth was presented to the board of directors of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County yesterday.

Mrs. Jesse Flory, who made the report, concentrated particularly on those recommendations of immediate importance to the Children's Aid Society:

The establishment of a family counseling service through the CAS; establishment of a home-maker and home management service; instruction in family budgeting through the home economics extension service; higher board rate for foster homes; and establishment of a county social welfare planning committee to coordinate activities of both Community Chest and non-Chest agencies.

Mrs. Flory also paid tribute to Mrs. Frank Patterson, chairman of the local committee, for the organization of the work in a brief space of time. The local report was the first to arrive at state headquarters which has requested 25 additional copies.

Resignation
The resignation of Leonard Randolph from the board of directors was accepted.

Mr. William Wells presided at the board meeting, held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, in the absence of the president, Mrs. R. Frederick Jones. Mrs. Wells also read a report of the executive committee studying family service, reviewing the steps which had been taken since it was first recommended in 1945.

A. J. Molitor, executive secretary, reported that 38 families involving 74 children had been cared for during the month with 63 office interviews and 79 telephone calls. Seven new families were accepted and 13 discharged.

At the month's end the agency was serving 35 families involving 56 children living out of their own homes, with 35 cases of protective care.

Molitor also reviewed some of the difficulties in placement due to lack of reserve foster homes.

Walter McClelland reported on a meeting of an agency committee with the Monroe County Commissioners and gave the financial report.

Mrs. Borger Leaves 67 Descendants

KRESGEVILLE — Mrs. Agnes Mae Borger, who leaves 67 living descendants, died unexpectedly yesterday morning while enroute from her home here to Palmerton Hospital. She had been in failing health the past year. She was 78.

Mrs. Borger was born in Christmansville, Carbon County, the daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Batholomew, and was a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Kunkletown; Lodge 245, P. O. of A, Kresgeville, and the Daughters of America, Kunkletown.

She was the widow of Levi Borger, who died 18 years ago.

Survivors

Surviving are six daughters, Mrs. William Kreinmeyer, Mrs. Fred Smale, Mrs. Wilbur Johnson, Mrs. George Burkhardt, all of Kresgeville; Mrs. Joseph Pepe, Pen Argyl; and Mrs. Adam Koehner, Kunkletown; one son, Levi, Jr., Kresgeville; a sister, Mrs. Lottie Hahn, Palmerton, 33 grandchildren, 26 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p. m. Saturday in St. Matthew's Church, Kunkletown, with Rev. Adan Bohner officiating. Burial will be in Kunkletown Cemetery.

Friends may call after 7 p. m. Friday at the Kresge Funeral Home, Brodheadsville.

Vacation For Election

HARRISBURG (AP)—Senate Republicans Tuesday called Democratic objections an "empty gesture" and passed a resolution calling for a two-week election recess until Nov. 9.

Sen. Charles R. Weiner, Democratic floor leader, objected to the resolution and asked the senate to approve a resolution by House Democratic leader Rep. Stephen McCann which would set Oct. 26 for final adjournment of the long legislative session.

Stroudsburg Eagles Discuss U.S. Project Of Securing Jobs For Persons Over Age 40

GEORGE Mackey, president, project at a meeting of discussed the jobs after 40 Stroudsburg Aerie 1106, Fraternal Order of Eagles, last night.

Mackey said the grand aerie has secured 750,000 signatures on petitions relative to jobs for the aging and that 250,000 more are needed. He urged all members of the local aerie to sign.

Walter Kosgot was appointed chairman of the committee for the Eagle Home of Manila, devoted to underprivileged Filipino adults and children. Each member was asked to donate at least one dollar for the home.

Ernest Ridgeway, membership chairman, said the next initiation will be Nov. 17 with applications for the class being accepted through Sunday, Oct. 25.

The initiation will be preceded by a banquet with a floor show to follow.

Ridgeway announced that Phil Bigley, grand worthy president, will visit Easton Aerie on Nov. 8 and that local members have been invited to attend.

Charles Berger spoke on participation of the Northeast District in the visit to the Wilkes-Barre Veterans Administration Hospital next Sunday.

Mackey announced the aerie will sponsor a visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile on Dec. 2 and that Bill Fisher's orchestra will play for a dance on Nov. 14. William Serfass, entertainment chairman, reported on the spaghetti dinner planned for Thursday.

Five members were elected and a minute of silent prayer was observed for Joseph Ardinger, a member who died recently.

Are You Giving Enough?

The second of three report meetings will be held tomorrow night by Monroe County's small army of Community Chest workers.

At last report, the campaign for $87,510 was about one-third subscribed. The solicitors must bring in another third of the quota tomorrow night or the drive will lag behind schedule.

Are you doing your part to see that the goal is reached by the end of this month? Have you given as much as you can toward this vital program?

Most of you who are being approached by the campaign workers are expected to make more than a token pledge or gift. We urge again that you realize there are 12 agencies included in this fund-raising effort.

Your contribution is to help operate these agencies for an entire year. If you are willing to give even a dime a week for each agency, that amounts to $1.20 a week or $62.40 a year.

Look again at your pledge or contribution and decide if it provides at least a dime a week for each of these needed services and programs.

Honestly now, are you doing your share in supporting the Community Chest?

Controlling The Delaware

A preview of the comprehensive report on development of the Delaware River basin which the Army Engineers are expected to have ready next spring was supplied (at Pocono Manor) to a conference sponsored jointly by the Interstate Commission and the Basin Advisory Committee.

Seventeen water storage dams are called for along the river and its tributaries. As of now, the engineers believe that 11 of them should be the responsibility of the affected States. The other six would involve federal participation. In addition, two now under way would be enlarged.

This detailed study is deemed essential before an agency can be created to manage and develop the water resources.

One big question is whether these undertakings can supply enough water from storage during periods of low river flow to keep down the salt content in the river in the Chester-Wilmington-New Castle area. If it cannot, the alternative to be considered is a dam across the main river in the vicinity of New Castle, which would to a degree impose a handicap on shipping.

At stake is provision of an adequate supply to meet industrial and community water needs throughout the basin in the next 50 years.

The present population of 22,000,000 at least partially dependent on Delaware water is expected to approach 30,000,000 within the half century. That fact makes it essential to have comprehensive plans completed at an early date, and have ready the over-all agency to carry out the job.

The Pennsylvania Story

Women Heard In Politics

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — With the approach of the Nov. 3 local elections, indications point strongly to the fact that Pennsylvania's womenfolk — in both Democratic and Republican circles — are destined to have more of a voice than ever before in party deliberations during the upcoming important 1960 presidential election year.

In recent years the din in the pots and pans department has become more and more persistent — persistent to the point where within the past decade they have reached an unheard-of prominence, although still far from the goal sought by the politically-inclined ladies.

Interestingly perhaps, all of this reflects the transition that has been taking place on the political scene in Pennsylvania — transition highlighted by the most part by the ascendancy of the powder puff brigade into the clouds of cigar smoke that heretofore marked top level deliberations.

Curiously, leaders in both parties blame this on circumstances quite beyond their control which in recent years have actually forced revision of once sound strategic political concepts.

Underlying all this is the inescapable fact that election campaigns are no longer controlled by sheer male brute force — that is, the once demagogic and iron fisted rule of the cigar-chomping political boss of yesteryear is no longer the exclusive controlling factor.

It still remains an influencing factor — although virtually negligible in many cases — but by no means the all-dominant factor of a few decades ago. Forcing this condition has been the constant exposure of election and campaign funds of the old political masters and the increasing weight, and in many cases today the predominance, of the independent or no-machine vote.

Throughout this transition in political concepts in the Keystone State the influence of the distaff side in both parties has become more noticeable and increasingly a factor, as epitomized today in the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women and the Pennsylvania Federation of Democratic Women.

In 1960 Pennsylvania will have a big voice in the selection of presidential candidates. Additionally the 210 members of the State House of Representatives will be chosen along with 25 members of the 50-man State Senate.

The women want more of a voice in saying who the candidates shall be and insist that more members of their sex be given the opportunity to run for these statewide but local offices and leading up to the presidential election they are insisting on more of a voice in party powwows.

The Pennsylvania Republican women meet here next month (Nov. 16 and 17) in their 37th annual convention — and indications are that the point of greater representation will be underscored more forcefully than ever before.

Pennsylvania's womenfolk unquestionably have gained in recognition in recent years.

Today for example Pennsylvania has as its Secretary of Internal Affairs Miss Genevieve Blatt (a Democrat) the first woman ever elected to a statewide elective office — and now serving her second consecutive term in that post.

With each administration women have been appointed in increasing number to state government positions. Grudgingly pipe smokers and cigar chompers of both parties in Pennsylvania admit that they have literally no alternative other than to heed the din of pots and pans, especially in 1960 if they hope to achieve any degree of success.

Production Know How vs. Production Don't

George Sokolsky Says...

Republican Opinion

One difference between the Presidential system in the United States and the Ministerial system in Great Britain is that an American President can be chosen for that office without any special preparation for it. Before one is chosen to be Prime Minister, he is likely to have been in a number of administrative positions.

For instance, Harold Macmillan, the British Prime Minister, has been in the government since 1940 when he was Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Supply; he has been Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Colonies; he was Secretary for Air in 1945; Minister of Housing; Minister of Defense; Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; Chancellor of the Exchequer.

His was a gradual promotion in office, while at the same time, he served as a Member of Parliament.

Neither President Truman nor President Eisenhower had had a like experience. President Hoover had been Secretary of Commerce and had been associated with President Wilson in the conduct of World War I and in the making of the peace at Versailles.

Franklin D. Roosevelt had been Assistant Secretary of the Navy. In Britain, the Prime Minister must be experienced; in the United States, that is not essential.

The first Vice President, in our history, to participate directly on the administrative side, has been Richard Nixon. This unusual development took place for several reasons, some of which are imponderables, having to do with the military training and the illness of President Eisenhower.

In all military training, the assumption of death-on-the-job is traditional; therefore the successor is always at hand and is ready to take over. President Eisenhower has included Vice President Nixon in his Cabinet; he has delegated to him any functions which ordinarily do not go to a Vice President.

Nixon has represented the United States as a deputy for the President on many conspicuous occasions. Until Nelson Rockefeller was elected Governor of the State of New York, it was assumed that Vice President Nixon would encounter no opposition at the Republican Convention. No other candidate had presented himself.

Nevertheless, there has been opposition to Richard Nixon, as there must be to all men. It was most ardently stimulated by Harold Stassen, a perennial candidate, and by the New Dealers who had switched to the Republican Party when Eisenhower became President. They regard Nixon as too conservative.

Nelson Rockefeller may or may not achieve distinction as Governor of New York. It is too early to know. New York State is a very difficult one to administer, principally because of its size and the complex population of New York City.

Two Governors of New York State, since Grover Cleveland, became President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Al Smith, Thomas E. Dewey and Averell Harriman failed in this great ambition.

Nelson Rockefeller is a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. He is campaigning on his personality and name, both of which are assets. His administrative experience has not been impressive; his political experience has been scant.

Already many figures in the Eisenhower Administration have quietly, without fanfare or announcement, moved to aid Rockefeller who is free to roam the country and to campaign while Governor of New York State.

Nixon, on the other hand, is a political captive. As Vice President, it is difficult for him to campaign for the Presidency without taking a position too independent of the President. He would appear to be disloyal.

There can be no question that there are enormous areas of policy, concerning which Nixon has views which differ from the President's. Wherever that is, so Nixon, rather than Eisenhower, is more representative of Republican opinion. Nixon has avoided expressing himself in any manner which may annoy the President.

On Nixon's Russian trip, he was accompanied by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University and brother of the President of the United States. There was no reason for this, unless the President put a monitor on Nixon.

That the Vice President made the most of that trip is not questioned, but when Khrushchev came to this country, he did not find it inconvenient to speak haughtily of the second man in our government. He had apparently been tipped off that it would not be found offensive.

Nevertheless, it was Richard Nixon who won that political skirmish. He behaved in the American tradition, which is what counts in politics.

News From The Realm Of Stamps

By Raymond Patton

The four-cent "Famous American" commemorative stamp honoring Dr. Ephraim McDowell will be placed on sale at Danville, Ky., Dec. 30 marking the 150th anniversary of what has been termed "the first planned abdominal operation" in America and the first surgical operation of its kind in the world.

This stamp will be issued to postoffices in sheets of 70 and will be printed in maroon. Dr. McDowell was born in Rockbridge County, Va., in 1771 and was taken as a child to Kentucky. He studied medicine in Staunton, Va., and at the University of Edinburgh before establishing his practice in Danville. He soon acquired the reputation as the best surgeon west of Philadelphia.

In a day when antiseptics and anesthesia were unknown and the mortality rate for even the simplest surgery extremely high, because of infection, doctors were taught that cutting into the abdominal cavity was certain to be fatal.

That was what Dr. McDowell told a farmer's wife, Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford in 1809 when he examined her and found her to have a large ovarian tumor. He told her if she was prepared to die and would come to his office in Danville, he would remove the tumor.

Mrs. Crawford rode the 60 miles to Danville on a mule and Dr. McDowell operated. Five days after the operation the patient made her own bed and on the 25th day returned home where she lived for another 35 years.

There was great opposition to the operation and some of the accounts of the episode in the history of surgery report that a mob waited outside the office resolved to lynch the doctor if the patient died.

The Kentucky Medical Society has for many years maintained the McDowell home in Danville as a memorial.

School Building Makes Deep Impression

I made my first visit on Monday to the new East Stroudsburg Joint Junior-Senior High School building.

It was my first and possibly last visit to the school as a resident of this area.

But, what I saw made me click these two eyeballs with the same sound as a pair of billiard balls in a head-on collision.

The building now under construction on N. Courtland St. is terrific in every meaning of the word.

Apparently not a thing has been overlooked. It will be a monument to school children and educators alike in the future.

Classes are scheduled to be held in the new building next September.

When this structure is complete, including landscaping, it will be a thing of beauty and outstanding in operation.

Those who designed this building are to be congratulated and the people of East Stroudsburg and other jointure locations should be extremely proud to have such a school.

L. Don Herman, former three-letter athlete at East Stroudsburg High School, is now stationed with the Marines in California.

Don, who recently became a father for the second time, expects to be sent to Hawaii in the very near future.

Mrs. Herman and their two sons recently joined Don in California.

Don is also a former Muhlenberg football captain.

Ken Ressler, choral director at East Stroudsburg High is supporting an unusually large grin these days.

The reason for the big smile is the fact that West Chester State Teachers College is breezing along with an undefeated football record.

Ken is a West Chester graduate — as you have no doubt guessed by this time.

George Condrick, former pitcher with the Stroudsburg Poconos, is working on the new East Stroudsburg School building.

George later went up to "AAA" standing in the St. Louis Cardinal farm system with Rochester, of the International League. Even later he pitched in the Pocono Mountains League, for Redders, after suffering an arm injury at Rochester.

George is a resident of Stroud Township.

Eleven persons recently received the rite of confirmation at St. John the Evangelist Episcopal Church.

The church is located in Dingmans Ferry.

Rev. Frederick Warnecke, Bishop of the Bethlehem Diocese directed the service.

Reports From Congress

Committee Secrecy Dips

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — Congressional committee chairmen appear to be lifting the veil of secrecy which long has obscured an important part of the legislative process.

A Congressional Quarterly survey shows that Congress in 1959 barred the public and the press from just under 30 percent of its committee meetings — the lowest secrecy mark recorded since the CQ tally began in 1953.

Between Jan. 7 and Sept. 15, when the 1959 session ended, the Senate closed 433 of its 1,350 committee meetings and the House locked the doors on 434 of 1,639 gatherings. During the same period, joint committees of the Senate and House held 163 meetings, 73 of them in private.

In all, closed sessions accounted for 29.6 percent of all committee meetings held in 1959. This compared with figures of 35 percent for 1953, 41 percent for 1954, 36 percent for 1955 and 1956 and 34 percent for 1957 and 1958. As the figures show, there has been a steady decline in secrecy since the high mark of 41 percent in 1954.

Secrecy Decline Hailed — Virtually all legislation is hammered into shape by House and Senate committees before it is cleared for floor debate. The committee chairmen have the power to determine when their committees will meet and whether sessions will be open or closed.

Critics of Government secrecy have argued that the practice of holding secret committee hearings hides from public view an important part of the American legislative process. "How can the American people fully understand the complicated legislative process," they ask, "when the important work done by Congress is done behind closed doors?"

One of the leading agencies combatting secrecy in Government is the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Its chairman for 1959 Sewell Brown, editor of the Providence (R.I.) Journal and Bulletin, hailed the 1959 decline in secrecy.

He told CQ: "The downward trend in closed Congressional committee meetings as recorded by Congressional Quarterly should be gratifying to every newspaper and newspaperman in the country. It should be remembered however, that the fight against Government secrecy has not ended. It will be the job of a free American press to see that the trend continues."

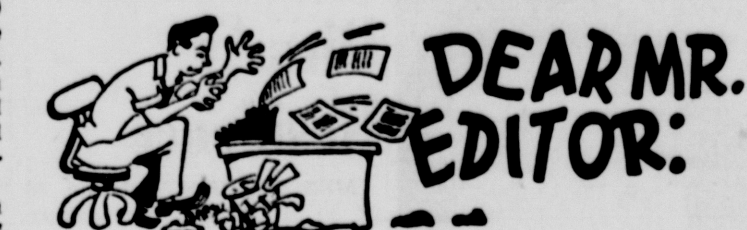

Top Secret Committees — The CQ secrecy survey was based on a day-to-day tally of committee meetings reported in the Congressional Record. The Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 required a list of meetings hearings to be published daily in the Record.

Of the committee that met 50 times or more during the 1959 session of Congress, six held more than half their sessions in secret.

National security considerations, it was claimed, required exclusion of the public and press from 73 percent of the meetings of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, from 60 percent of the gatherings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, from 57 percent of the sessions of the Senate Armed Services Committee and from 54 percent of the meetings of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee.

The House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees said public sensitivity to such delicate issues as taxes, social security and life insurance forced Ways and Means to close 53 percent of its sessions and Finance to close 52 percent of its meetings.

The House Un-American Activities Committee said it had reported none of its closed hearings because of the possibility that witnesses appearing in secret session might receive unfavorable publicity. The committee did not estimate the number of such hearings in 1959.

Hunters, Take Note

Dear Editor: The crisp nights and changing colors of Fall usually marks the time when the outdoor sportsman packs away his fishing tackle and unpacks and checks his firearms in preparation for the regularly scheduled hunting seasons.

Since the Pocono Area is blessed with some of the finest hunting in the State and since the area is readily accessible to many people, a heavy influx of sportsmen may be expected within the next two months.

Statistics on forest fire occurrence for Pennsylvania show that the Fall Fire seasons are not as severe as those in the Spring. However, we should realize that although statistics may work out well over periods of years, for any given year, they may not give a true picture.

Actually in terms of risks, the Fall Season can and sometimes is our worst period. The presence of hundreds of thousands of hunters in our woodland and forests certainly present a fire risk. On the bright side of the picture, however, is the fact that outdoor sportsmen are usually interested in conservation and extremely careful to preserve our natural resource heritage.

Unfortunately the percentage of fires attributed to hunters over the entire State has been on the increase the past two Fall seasons. Naturally we hope that this season shows a decided decrease.

As many hunters take to the forests this year in the Poconos, they will probably pass through areas which were damaged by fires during the past spring. This should certainly serve as an added reminder to be doubly careful during their enjoyment of their outdoor recreation.

Remember — The Poconos are known far and wide for the picturesque fall colorama — Keep Black out of the list of Fall colors.

Try and Stop Me — by Bennett Cerf

Jack Paar has made a collection of letters kids send home to their parents from camp. Here are a couple of beauties:

1. Dear Ma: Now that I'm here I hope you and Dad are having all the fun you were talking about when you didn't know I was awake the night before I left. When camp is over, I think I'll go live in Disneyland. With love,

BUTCH.

2. Dear Mom and Dad: My counselor is making me write this. We go in swimming every day and it's better than home because they don't make us wait an hour after eating like you always do. I asked two counselors to come live with us for the winter and they said O. K.

Love,

CHRIS.

Have you ever thought what a playwright must suffer through when he pens a flop that closes after a week in New York? Here's a touching resume by Moss Hart:

First, he has to read the dismal notices in the daily papers. Second, there are the dour reappraisals in the Sunday drama sections. Third, the critics on the weekly magazines take out their little hatchets. Fourth, he rereads the four notices all over again six months later in old magazines in the dentist's waiting room. And worst of all, eight years later, when all presumably is forgotten, up pops the worst review again in some playgoer's anthology!

A couple of hoboes were sunning themselves in New York's Bryant Park. One began a rambling reminiscence, oblivious of the fact that his companion had fallen fast asleep.

"Ah, those were the days of my glory," he recalled. "That dollar to which I just referred, incidentally, was the first dollar I ever earned honestly. The other, if I remember correctly, was on June 14, 1952."

Love,

CHRIS.

The telephone operator at a big advertising agency on Madison Avenue hasn't forgotten the friendly, chatty manner she acquired in her schooldays out in Kansas. The other day a client called her boss about one p.m. "He's out to lunch," reported the phone girl, "but I bet he'll be back soon. Nobody took him."

Just Between Us —

—by Bobby Westbrook

There are times when it doesn't pay to be too efficient. When that six-foot scarecrow who is to preside at the Morey PTA dance was delivered to the home of Mrs. Roland Everitt, his arms were not attached.

So she got her husband busy and assembled him—only to discover that in this state it is impossible to get him in a car—so she'll be walking him to the party, I guess, which should cause quite a stir.

Quite a stir the Soropomists should be creating tomorrow night, too, arriving for their dinner in costume before it's even dark.

Well, before it's dark tonight, I hope you've proved something: that as individuals and without pressure from a sponsoring group you are enough concerned about the blood program to have been a donor at the bloodmobile visit today at the Presbyterian Church.

It's a discouraging business for the committee, begging for blood once a month. This time they've let it up to you. There's no reason why it shouldn't work. It's yourself and your family that you're protecting by making sure that the blood program continues here.

But I've got my fingers crossed. As individuals, in the past, you don't buy tickets, give donations, volunteer for service, or give blood unless somebody's twisting your arm. Prove me wrong, why don't you?

Stroud Club Board

The executive board of the Stroud Community Club will meet Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Clugston, 532 Wallace St., Stroudsburg. Plans for the square and round dance November 2 will be discussed.

Gardeners, Biology Class Hikes Back To Ice Age In Tour Of Cranberry Bog

Tannersville—Members and friends of the Pocono Garden Club, and members of the biology class of Pocono Township High School, hiked through the Cranberry Bog, on a tour conducted by George Learn, Jr., head of the Science department of Pocono High School, at the October meeting of the Garden Club.

The Cranberry Bog, known locally as the "Cranberry" is located two miles east of lower Tannersville. It is irregular in shape and is traversed by the Cranberry Creek. According to scientists, the bog dates back to the glacial period in world history. In recent years, borings of underlying deposits have revealed peat deposits extending to a depth of 30 to 35 feet.

This is one of the most southern low-altitude bogs in the east and is unique in that vegetation found in it is of a type usually found much farther north, in much colder regions. Trees characteristic of the area are tamarack and black spruce. Shrubs of interest include the large or American Cranberry. Mr. Learn told of a recent trip through the bog during which he picked enough of these berries to take home where his wife prepared cranberry sauce for a meal, from them.

Two insect-eating plants, the pitcher plant and the spatulate-leaved sundew are found in the bog. Other interesting plants found there include broad-leaved arrowhead, sheathed cotton grass, blue flag, wild rosemary, leatherleaf, swamp laurel and water willow. Dwarf mistletoe, a parasitic plant which feeds on the black spruce, reaches its southern limit here. In open areas, rare orchids are sometimes found. The entire vegetation is similar to that which would have been found in a forest in this area many thousands of years ago.

In recent years, the bog has been recognized by botanists as one of the regions in the northeastern part of this country where vegetation from the past may still be found. In recognition of this fact, a definite move to preserve the area was made in 1955. At that time the Nature Conservancy, a nationally active organization approved the establishment of the Tannersville Bog Committee, consisting of a membership of 14 local citizens. In 1957, over 62 acres of land was purchased. And in 1958, 1959 more acres was acquired. It is hoped that in the future approximately 100 additional acres of bog may be purchased for preservation.

At the close of the tour, the group went to Cranberry Manor where tea was served by Mrs. Charles Besecker, Mrs. Donald Hartman, Mrs. James N. Canfield Jr., Mrs. Wilson Lee and Mrs. George Learn Jr. The president, Mrs. Donald Hartman, appointed the following to serve on the banquet committee: Mrs. Frances Besecker, Mrs. Clyde White and Mrs. Rodgers Shook. Mrs. Betty Brader, Mrs. Haviland Heller, Mrs. Richard Coss and Mrs. Roy Schack.

Announcement was made that the next club meeting would be held at the Tannersville fire house on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 10. All members are urged to be present at that meeting as voting on the place of the Christmas banquet will be held at that time.

Slides on "Christmas Decorations" will be shown. Exhibit for the meeting will be "A Thanksgiving Centerpiece."

Hostesses will be Mrs. Edward Wood, Mrs. Andrew Weingartner, Mrs. C. G. Bush, Mrs. Robert Layton, Mrs. Ida Lank and Mrs. Ada Willard.

This is the first of two Courtesy Days we are having at A. B. Wyckoff prior to the official opening of our second annual BIG October Sale this coming Friday. Exactly what is a Courtesy Day? Well, it is a special day, prior to a sale, when our charge customers are able to come into the store and, having had advance notice, take advantage of the many tremendous savings being offered during our truly dazzling spectacular of values. Of course, ANYONE who happens in today or tomorrow can buy at these special prices ... but as a special courtesy only the regular, established customers have been given advance notice.

We have, of course, had Courtesy Days before ... and the store is usually busier for them than a beehive as everyone rushes in to get a preview of the merchandise, and make selections while the stock is complete. Actually, however, EVERY day is courtesy day at Wyckoff's. I have never yet seen a time when the red carpet was not out for the customer or when the customer was not handled with kid gloves.

Which brings me to my next argument. Just to be different, I think we should have at least one DISCOURTESY DAY ... one day when customer and sales person alike could say exactly what is on his or her mind. What a field day THAT would be! However, it had better be on April Fool's Day, don't you agree? Then there couldn't be any hard feelings. And anyway, doesn't everybody love everybody? I guess so ... but everyone likes a change of pace sometimes ... like Sidewalk Days, did pickles with ice cream ... and a thunder storm in December. The unexpected keeps us, if not young, at least AWAKE!

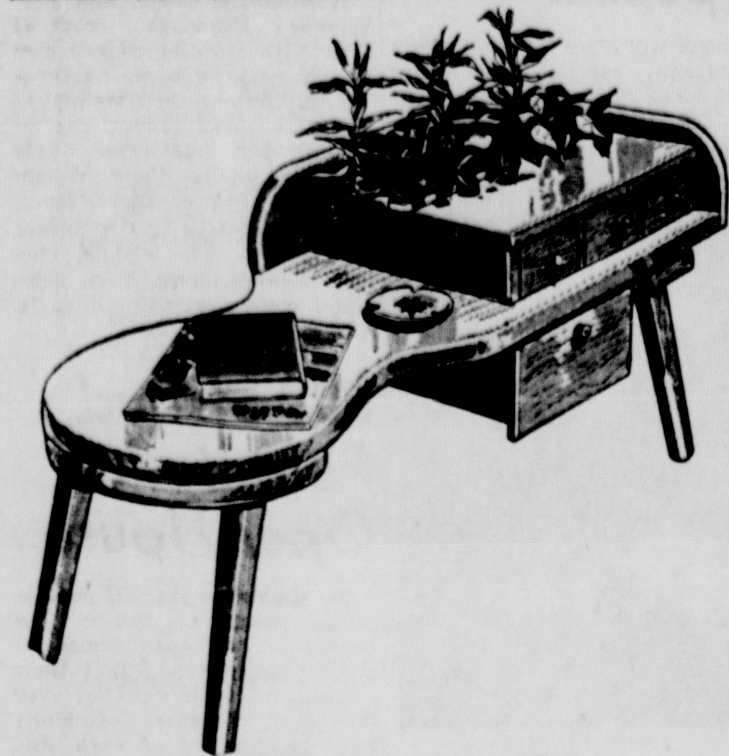

Mrs. Devitt and The Wyckoff Shopper

The little picture shown above, is a small version of one that occupies a proud space in my scrapbook. It shows me interviewing one of the most interesting guests ever to appear on our Wyckoff Shopper radio program, Mrs. Wellesley W. Devitt, who, with her husband, has spent 29 years in Kenya, East Africa, with the Africa Inland Missions. The Devitts and I spent an interesting day in Philadelphia recently, when they told me about their dream of taking back to Africa a trailer so they need not live in a stationary home anymore, but might travel anywhere in their home over the tremendously large mission field they serve.

I hope their appearances in the Stroudsburg did much to make this dream come true ... certainly their motion pictures show that they must indeed love God to serve him so rigorously in such a strange, faraway land. I have interviewed many outstanding people ... Eleanor Roosevelt, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, Helens and Mala Rubinstein, Dale Evans, to name just a few, but while Edith Devitt has not acquired their fame, my heart goes out and my hat goes off to a woman who serves God so wholeheartedly while also serving her family and humanity in general.

Colonial Furniture Wins Praise Of Married Couples

AT A RECENT home show two thirds of the young married couples interviewed indicated a preference for Colonial furniture.

Even though most of the families lived in new developments containing ranch and split level houses, the reason given was because "it blended so well with our other pieces". While the Cobblers Bench illustrated above makes a very decorative cocktail table, it also adds an additional seat to the living room. The full size pattern method of construction simplifies building this Cobbler's Bench from stock-size lumber.

Step by step directions and complete list of materials tell what to buy and where each is used. Construction is so simplified anyone should be able to build this bench in a minimum of time, at very little cost.

Building furniture offers many rewards. It not only provides an economical solution to household problems, but it also offers many pleasant hours of complete relaxation.

Send 50 cents in cash or money order for Pattern Number 586, Cobbler's Bench to The Daily Record, P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N.Y.

Send additional 35 cents for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other build it yourself projects. If you wish First Class Mail please send 25 cents.

Kitchen Top Room In Home

WHEN YOU SHOP for a home, make sure to inspect the kitchen thoroughly because it is the most important room in the house, says "Today's Home" magazine in its Fall issue just released to newsstands. It says: "The kitchen is the working core of the house and usually its control center. As such, it should be adjacent to the living room and the dining area."

If there are children it should have a view of outdoor play yards and be in supervisory distance of any indoor play room.

It should be convenient to the front door. If persons approaching the house can be seen from the kitchen, so much the better.

A kitchen requires both adequate space to move around in and sufficient cabinets for storage. Neither must be sacrificed for the other.

Actual Size
The actual size of the kitchen, the area of its counters, drawers, and shelf space will be closely related to the size of your family and to how extensively you entertain; but the spacing of appliances is fixed within rigid limits, no matter how large the kitchen.

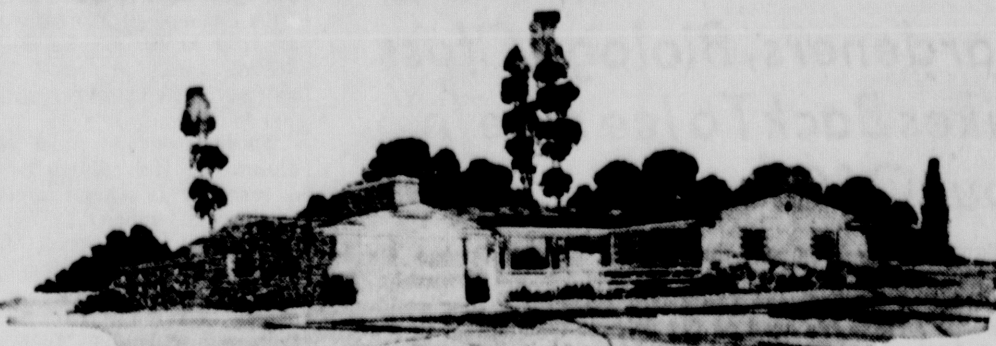

"The arrangement of appliances and cabinets will depend upon the plan of the kitchen and the location of doors and windows. Some plans are far better than others."

"If the kitchen is arranged in an 'L' or 'U' plan you are on safe ground, even if the plan is interrupted at some point by a door or window. Just be sure the door doesn't open in front of an appliance or work space."

A "one-wall" kitchen, unless it is tiny, is likely to be inconvenient and effort-wasting," ceiling and walls will absorb sound and rubber or solid vinyl flooring will muffle the noise of busy feet.

Parade of Homes

Original Rancher For Large Family

THERE'S nothing stereotyped about this impressive design. It is a highly original rancher with charm and interest in every component. Designed for a large family, H-525 embodies four bedrooms, full bath plus a lavatory, huge living room, an even more spacious dining-family room, and a two-car garage. Further adding to its functionalism is the detailing for outdoor living.

The exterior is a real gem of textural composition and proper proportioning brick veneer is predominant, relieved on porches of the front two bedrooms by a stone wing wall. A lamp post and white wood fence framing the porch and stone walk adds a traditional touch to the otherwise modern lines.

Subtle contrast can be achieved with brightly painted shutters and roof shingles of the same color. The stone walk continues into the inside and sharply defines the vestibule. A guest closet faces the entrance.

To the right is a center hallway which provides immediate access to the kitchen or the main bath or the home's four bedrooms.

To the left is the spacious front-to-rear living room. A clear uncluttered look of spaciousness distinguishes this area. Windows fill both front and rear walls of the living room imparting an illusion of much larger space. This illusion is further enhanced by an inside planter extending along the base of the rear window wall.

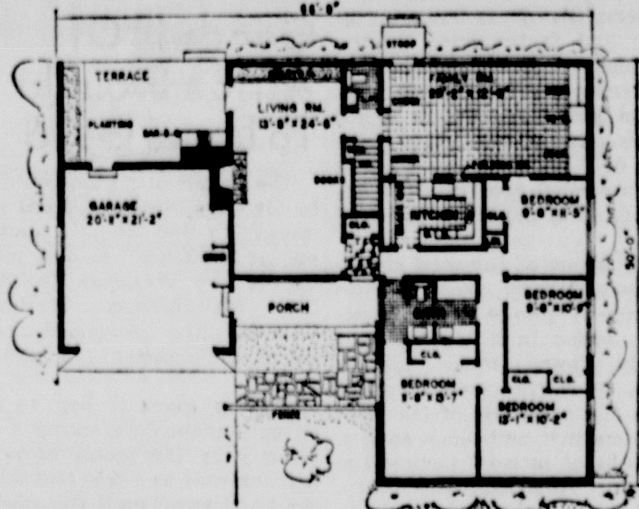

The ledgerock fireplace blends in well with the surrounding appointments. Rivaling the living room in space is the family room.

Two built-in china cabinets at one end mark this portion for the dining area. Built-in desk and Hi-Fi at the other, however, suggests that here is where family activities will predominate. Virtually the entire rear wall is devoted to window area providing a panoramic view of the backyard landscaping.

The kitchen is almost an integral part of the family room, separated from the dining area portion only by a peninsular cabinet which contains the sink. Unique and highly functional describes the U-shaped kitchen. A built-in snack bar is opposite the open end of the "U" while the "U" itself is devoted to work areas. In spite of limited space there's plenty of cabinet and counter area to meet the demands of a conscientious homemaker.

The four bedrooms are closely grouped, each easily accessible to the main bath. All contain liberal dimensions, ample wardrobe provisions and suitable window area. To meet the demands of a large family, the main bath is accessible from three locations—the master bedroom, and either one of the two halls connecting the four bedrooms.

The lavatory between the living room and family room

Simple Test For House Floor Plan

A SIMPLE WAY to test floor plan is to see if it will provide good traffic circulation, says "Today's Home" magazine. It says there are five key questions for grading a house plan:

Does the main entrance (used mostly by guests) lead directly into the center of the house? Is there a foyer or small entrance hall and clothes closet inside the main entrance? Does the family entrance lead directly from the garage to the kitchen? Can you enter the house from either entrance without going through a third room? Does the kitchen have a control tower location where you can supervise all of the major areas?

"Today's Home" says that good zoning is also important—that sleeping, living and working areas should be clearly separated from each other.

"They also should be well related to each other for efficient circulation," it says. "When you look at a house ask yourself if children sleeping in their bedrooms, for example, will be shielded from the noise of adults being entertained in the living area."

Will work in progress in the kitchen or utility area be out of sight of guests in the living area? And can children playing in the family area be zoned off from adults reading or resting elsewhere in the house?

Press Out Water
SOME COOKS like to soak onion rings in cold water before adding to a salad. If you try this, drain the rings and press out the rest of the water with a soft towel.

REMOVE PAINT
Even if you've never done it before, you can strip old paint easily with Strypeeze Special, the water-soluble paint remover. At paint and hardware stores.

Basement Heating
HEATING the basement does not increase your fuel bill by much, says "Today's Home," but does, however, mean a "substantial boost in the overall comfort level of the house." So ask for one or two heating outlets or small radiators in the basement you build or buy.

IN PLANNING the basement of your new home, make sure that it will have adequate light and ventilation and will be easily accessible from both the interior and exterior, "Today's Home" magazine recommends in the Fall issue just distributed to newsstands. Good light and air, it says, will make the area below grade as livable as your rooms on the main floors.

"The exit from the basement to the outdoors should be located in the center of the house," it says. "When you enter a well-planned basement from the outdoors, you come upon a central hall like the one you face upstairs as you enter from the front door."

Off this center hall are located the various basement rooms — laundry room, recreation room, storage and heater room, perhaps a bedroom, den or workshop, or even a basement bathroom where family members can wash up after a hectic season in the outdoors.

Thus you can reach any basement room from inside or outside without going through another room. "You will find that an outside entrance to the basement is handy for everyday needs of your family. When your basement playroom can be reached directly from the outdoors, your youngsters can run in and out without bothering anybody in the rooms upstairs. "Mom can take her laundry to the drying-yard in a direct line; she won't have to drip water through the house. When Dad wants to bring in sheets of plywood or other material for his workshop, he will find it a cinch."

Don't Scrape On Surveyor's Fee

IT IS false economy to try to save on a surveyor's fee when buying a lot, says "Today's Home" magazine. "For a few dollars" it says, "you'll have a true picture of the property you intend to buy."

Knowing the exact boundaries of a piece of land can save you from later disputes and lawsuits with your neighbors."

The Daily Investor

Historic Factor In Stocks

By William A. Doyle

Q. Why do the stocks of many closed-end investment companies sell at a discount from the asset value each share is backed up by? I have read that buying stock of closed-end investment companies at a discount can be very worthwhile. Is this true? Why are many closed-end investment stocks likely to take big day-to-day price changes — big in comparison to the prices of open-end investment company (mutual fund) shares?

A. The fact that stocks of most closed-end investment companies can be bought at a discount is a historic thing.

Mostly, it's due to the fact that investors normally prefer direct ownership.

When you own stocks in an investment company, you have indirect ownership in all the securities that the investment company has in its portfolio.

Closed-end investment companies are traded in the open market — either on a stock exchange or in the over-the-counter market.

William A. Doyle, their trading price is set by supply and demand. The open-end investment companies (mutual funds) are usually at net asset value but, in some cases, there is a small redemption charge.

While the redemption price of each mutual fund usually varies a bit from day to day, it seldom makes a major sudden change. The supply and demand in the market place for closed-end company shares can show some big changes.

with the price reflecting it. If you buy stock of a closed-end investment company at a big discount from net asset value, you have more assets working for you than the amount of cash you put up.

A "bargain" such as that can pay off — if the investment company does well, its asset value per share rises and its stock becomes popular in the market place.

But, if none of those things happen, you may find the stock selling at even a greater discount from net asset value in the future.

Over the past 10 years or so, the discounts on most closed-end investment company shares have narrowed. But, in the latest market slump, the discounts widened out again.

Q. How can a company keep track of everybody who owns its stock, when the stock is being so actively traded every business day?

A. That's the transfer agent's job. A transfer agent keeps a record of the name and address of each registered stock-owner and the number of shares each stockholder owns. The transfer agent also sees that certificates presented to his office for transfer are properly cancelled and that new certificates are issued in the name of the new owner.

Q. Here's something that grips me. Why is Texas Gulf Sulphur stock considered such a speculation? It has paid dividends since 1921.

A. The sulphur business is a "cyclical industry." It's had more than its share of good times and bad. That goes for the companies in it and their stocks. Texas Gulf Sulphur has shown some sharp changes in earnings from year to year. And in bad years it didn't pay as high a dividend as it did in good years.

However, over the long run, it has a good record. It is rated as a better grade risk stock — not an out-and-out speculation. The suspicion here is that you own some of this stock and can't bear the thought of it being called anything except the highest-class blue chip. You should learn to fact facts.

Organizations Represented At Meeting Of Fellowship

NEWFOUNDLAND—The army, civil service, nursing and construction organizations were represented at the meeting of the Greenwater-Newfoundland-South Sterling Youth Fellowship at the Moravian Church Sunday night.

Lt. Col. Edward Moran, of the Tobhanna Signal Depot; Robert Krieger, postmaster at Greenwater; Mrs. J. Robert Burdick, nurse and homemaker, and Forrest Compton, excavating contractor, participated in a panel discussion on "How I can be a Christian in my daily living."

An unusual point brought out by each of the four careerists was that each considered his chosen profession or occupation "a wonderful opportunity for Christian witness."

Moderator Rev. Arthur Campney, Methodist pastor, was moderator of the panel. Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Fulmer, Moravian pastor, summed up the discussion in the statement: "Remember, in whatever work you are doing, to be a Christian."

There was no regular business meeting because of the length of the discussion period. However, it was announced that MYF members planning to attend the Booth Festival at Lakeville next Sunday night meet at the Moravian Church at 6:30 p. m. Donations of cash and food for the Children's Home of the Wyoming Conference will be made at the Booth Festival.

Tebbetts May Be Drafted To Pilot Braves

NEW YORK (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts, who once said he would never manage again, very likely will be drafted to pilot the Milwaukee Braves in 1960, an informed source told The Associated Press Tuesday.

Tebbetts, who was hired as executive vice president of the Braves a year ago after he resigned as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is Milwaukee owner Lou Perini's personal choice to succeed the departed Fred Haney.

Perini has been using his best salesmanship, it was learned, in an effort to convince Birdie that his move from the front office to the field would be an asset to the organization.

According to an informant, Perini gave serious consideration to only two other possibilities—Leo Durocher and Charlie Dressen.

The reluctant Tebbetts consented Perini he would be more valuable in the front office. Dressen is next in line for the job.

Red Schoendienst, the Braves' veteran second baseman, also was considered by Perini.

Selkirk or Houk
Another managerial vacancy — at Kansas City — is expected to be filled by either Ralph Houk or George Selkirk. Houk, New York Yankee coach, is the No. 1 choice.

If he rejects the offer, Selkirk reportedly will be asked to take over on the field with Harry Craft, the departed manager, succeeding George as supervisor of player personnel.

Kansas City owner Arnold Johnson insisted "nobody has been picked yet."

Tebbetts himself continued to insist this afternoon that "my name has never come up" in any discussions of the managerial job with top Braves brass.

'Land' Army Goes To Air

NEW YORK (AP) — Army's football team, which for more than a decade emphasized ground attack then won its first passing title in 1958, is going to the air more than ever this season.

The Cadets lead major college football teams in passing with an average of 213 yards a game, the NCAA Service Bureau reported Tuesday. In four games Army has attempted 115 passes, completing 71 for 852 yards.

College of the Pacific has averaged 200.5 yards for second place, and Boston College 197 yards for third.

North Texas State leads in both rushing and total offense. Syracuse is the scoring leader with an average of 34.5 in four games.

North Texas State has a game rushing average of 336.2 yards compared with 273.5 for second-place Oklahoma. In total offense, North Texas has averaged 416.8 yards in five games, while second-place Iowa has averaged 411.5 yards in four.

Blattner, Dean Separate Team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sportscenter Buddy Blattner confirmed reports Tuesday that a personal difference with Dizzy Dean prompted him to resign from a contract said to call for $75,000 a year.

The 40-year-old former major league infielder said he had asked for and received his release because he no longer wanted to work with Dean, former pitching great.

Blattner said Dean insisted that their sponsor withdraw approval for him to work the National League playoff games between Milwaukee and Los Angeles.

Blattner said Dean was "apparently miffed because the network and sponsor didn't want him" to handle the television commentary on the playoffs.

Dean and Blattner had been radio and TV partners for years.

British Arrive

NEW YORK (AP) — Great Britain's 10-man Ryder Cup golf team arrived Tuesday aboard the Queen Elizabeth. The British will play the U.S. team Nov. 6-7 at Palm Desert, Calif.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Chicago White Sox and the San Francisco Giants dominated the 1959 Associated Press major league All-Star team, landing three players each on the squad.

Mountaineers Get Ready For Zephyrs

STRESSING defense, Stroudsburg High football coach Walter Bjorn sent his Mountaineers through a heavy drill yesterday as the West Main St. school eleven prepared for Friday night's duel with Whitehall at Gordon Giffels Field. Game time is 8 p.m.

Summarizing his team's 19-14 loss to Bangor, Bjorn emphasized, "We just ran out of gas."

Bangor came from behind in the second half to edge the Mountaineers after Stroudsburg had held 14-6 and 14-12 leads in the contest.

Bjorn, however, took time out to cite three of his players in the duel with the Slayers. "Bill Schoonover played a whale of a game for us both on offense and defense," the Stroudsburg mentor said.

Also Cited
"Also guard Al Edinger and center Bruce Imbt gave us workmanlike performances," the Stroudsburg grid boss noted.

The Mountaineers will go into the Zephyr duel hoping to snap a four-game losing streak. Stroudsburg hasn't won a game since their opener with Lehigh.

However, the Mountaineers set-backs have been close in every contest—all four totalling only 19 points difference.

Prior to the game, Stroudsburg High's 1929 and 1939 eleven will be honored by the Varsity "S" Club. At halftime a game between Stroud Union seventh and eighth grade grid teams will be played.

Players Like 2 Stars Tilts

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league players, through representatives Robin Roberts and Harvey Kuenn, informed baseball's Executive Council Tuesday they favored two All-Star games next year provided they are played within four days.

This was one of several proposals submitted by the player representatives involving player-owner relations.

The players were assured that the owners will consider all proposals at their annual winter meeting in Miami Beach next December.

Two All-Star games were played for the first time last season. The first was played in Pittsburgh in July; the second in Los Angeles in August.

If there are two All-Star games next year, the first will be in Kansas City the second Tuesday in July and the second in New York two days later.

Harmon's Loop To Bowl Today

HARMON'S Recreation League will bowl today at Harmon alleys, East Stroudsburg, starting at 9 p.m.

Alleys one and two — Albino's and Harmon's.

Alleys three and four — East Stroudsburg Hardware vs. Lindy's Tavern.

Alleys five and six — Detrick's Dairy vs. Coates Box and Carton Co.

Nebel's To Honor Sponsor, Hurler

NEBEL'S MARKET softball team will honor its sponsor Willie Nebel and hold a farewell fete for star pitcher Johnny Heckman tonight at the Cinder Inn, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Nebel will be presented with the team's playoff championship award and Heckman will be cited for his outstanding mound performances while a Market hurler.

Fish Captures 3rd Straight Golf Crown

MARSHALLS CREEK — John Fish captured his third straight Mountain Manor golf championship over the weekend, shooting a gross 73 to beat out 55 entries for the crown.

Trailing the perennial champion was L. Sharkey with 76, A. Cardoni with 77, and John Pappan with 80.

Harold (Power-plus) Stettler won the low net honors with a 72, coming off an actual 81.

Other Net Victors
Second was A. Grosso with 83 and a net of 72, followed by Charley (11 strokes one hole) Potcher, with 85, and Jim Kennedy with 81. Both had nets of 72.

The decision for low net winners was based on the Coloway scoring system.

Mountain Manor professional Ray Lambert was in charge of the tournament.

Ref Missed, SMU 'Lost'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist and Rice football fans, spurred by a referee's admission he erred in nullifying an SMU touchdown, fought last Saturday's 13-13 deadlock all over again Tuesday.

But the game is almost certain to go into the records as a tie. The only way SMU could win a post-dated victory would be for Rice to forfeit.

Referee C. W. Davis admitted Tuesday he made a mistake when he ruled that SMU's Don Meredith was beyond the line of scrimmage at the moment he tossed a touchdown pass into the end zone.

Davis' ruling nullified what looked like SMU's game-winning touchdown.

Could Forfeit
Southwest Conference officials said a "judgment decision" by a game official cannot be protested.

Dr. Henry Hardt of Texas Christian, conference president, said that only a voluntary forfeit by Rice could alter the game's outcome.

Moore KO's British King

LONDON (AP) — World featherweight champion Dave Moore Tuesday night battered British champion Bobby Neil to defeat in 2 minutes, 55 seconds of the first round after flooring the Briton four times in a non-title fight.

Moore, 26, from Springfield, Ohio, floored Neil for counts of six, eight, four and three before the referee stopped the contest.

The Scotsman fighter wobbled to his feet at the end of the fourth round. It was scored as a technical knockout.

The fight, a scheduled 10-round, was made at 129 pounds. The exact weights were not announced.

The 26-year-old British titleholder, who made three comebacks after crippling injuries in road accidents and a broken jaw in a fight, took the bout against Moore hoping for an upset. He had been promised a world title fight against Moore if he defeated him Tuesday night.

But Moore had Neil reeling and rolling from the first blow.

Holy Name To See Eagles

ST. MATTHEW'S Catholic Church Holy Name Society is sponsoring a bus trip to Philadelphia Sunday to see the Eagles and Los Angeles Rams in a National Football League game at Franklin Field.

The bus will leave East Stroudsburg's DLW Railroad Station Sunday at 9:45 p. m. A pickup of passengers also will be made at the American House Hotel, Stroudsburg, at 10 a. m.

There are still tickets available for the trip. Persons wishing to go to the game are urged to contact Harry Mullins or Andy LaBar.

Cost of the round trip bus ticket and a ducat to the grid game is $8 per person.

Lion Tackle Returns

DETROIT (AP) — The winless Detroit Lions Tuesday persuaded tackle Lou Creekmur, 32, to return from retirement for the remainder of the 1959 National Football League season.

The 6-foot-4, 255-pound Creekmur retired at the end of last season, his ninth since his graduation from William & Mary.

The HUNGRY SPORTSMAN & Eddie Meier

Roast Quail With Oyster-Mushroom Stuffing
A dinner of roast quail is a perfect end to an afternoon spent hunting over the dogs and an oyster-mushroom stuffing sets off these fine flavored birds in excellent fashion.

Such a stuffing is simple to make. Merely fill the cavity with whole oysters (which have been sprinkled lightly with salt and pepper) and button mushrooms. Sew the opening with a few loops of thread or skewer with a toothpick. Some persons use the oysters just as they come from the container but I prefer rinsing them under water first.

The natural juices make the finished product a bit too "oyster-y."

After the birds have been stuffed, place on rack in pan and bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees) for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and continue baking until brown. Baste birds frequently with butter or bacon drippings to which a little red wine or water has been added.

Freezing Game
IN OUR book there is nothing that beats the half-gallon waxed milk containers for freezing ducks and other game. We once used to wrestle with freezer paper, cellophane, and so on, but no more—except when the game is too large to fit a container, like a big ringneck. Even then we frequently cut it into serving pieces.

The job is so simple! Plop the whole bird (or serving pieces) into the container, add enough ice water to cover to a depth of at least a half inch, and place in freezer! And that's it! Thawing, of course, takes longer but this is seldom a problem. Game frozen this way will keep 8 to 10 months with no loss of flavor and no drying out!

STC's Booters Seek 4th Win Against Unbeaten Rams

FACING ITS BIGGEST obstacle of the season, East Stroudsburg Teachers' soccer team set its cleats firmly in the ground, awaiting West Chester's squad today for a "class of Pennsylvania" booting match on the Warriors field. Game time is 3 p. m.

John Eller's under-class dotted Warriors will be after their fourth straight victory of the season.

The Golden Rams, already winners over Penn State and highly rated Howard University, have a 4-0 seasonal mark and an eight-game win streak over a two-year period.

Came Along Fast
Eller's team, built around All-America soccer candidates Ernie Howe and Al (Boss) Miller, have come along rapidly since they lost their season's opener to Ithaca.

ESSTC's victories are over Montclair, Brockport and Lincoln.

Notre Dame was a one-touchdown favorite, but that didn't stop Look, who was shifted to quarterback this fall after two years as a halfback. He set up the first Spartan touchdown in the opening period with a 41-yard run, then threw a 52-yard scoring pass to end Fred Arbanas in the third period.

A senior from Lansing, Mich., Look was MSU's leading round gainer at halfback last year.

Runner Up
A close runnerup for the back-of-the-week honors was Jack Spikes, Texas Christian fullback. He scored a touchdown on a 28-yard run in his team's 39-6 victory over Texas A&M. He also intercepted two passes, one setting up another touchdown, and the other setting up his 33-yard field goal. In the first TCU scoring drive, Spikes carried the ball 33 of the 70 yards.

Tom Singleton, Yale's junior quarterback from Kenilworth, Ill., also received considerable backing for his play against Cornell. Singleton passed for the first touchdown as the unbeaten, unscored on Ellis blanked Cornell 23-0. He tallied the third Yale touchdown on an 8-yard run after engineering the second touchdown on a 74-yard drive. He was 3-for-3 in kicking extra points, averaged 35.5 yards on eight punts, and completed five of seven passes for 33 yards.

Zimich And Nittel Cop Grid Awards

THOMAS ZIMICH, 72
Buron Street, East Stroudsburg took first prize money in the weekly Football Contest of The Daily Record.

Zimich was the only entry this week to pick 20 winners out of a possible 25.

Jake Nittel, 41 N. Courtland Street, East Stroudsburg was one of 3 entry's picking 19 correct winners out of the possible 25.

However Nittel's pick of 45 to be the most points scored by any of the participating teams was closest to the high of 53.

Another big Football Contest is now underway for this coming weekend. You too can be a big money winner by making your selections now from the list in today's Contest Page.

Geneva Halfback Leading Scorers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sophomore halfback Paul Pupi of Geneva with 60 points is the high scorer thus far in the 1960 Pennsylvania collegiate football season.

Pupi, only 5-7 and 150 pounds, has 10 touchdowns in Geneva's five games to date, four of them winning efforts. As a freshman the pre-med honor student from Monaca had 30 points.

Bill Shockley of West Chester, last year's scoring champion, and Gary Gilbert of Edinboro, trail Pupi with 37 points each. Shockley, who had 131 points last year, has played in four games and Gilbert in five.

Millersville's standout freshman back, Steve Bednar, and Shippensburg end John Freeland, are next in line with 36 points each.

Five players each have 30 points.

Forestry Association Plans Annual Event

TANNERSVILLE — Saturday of this week the annual banquet and program of the Pocono Forestry Assn. will be held here in the Pocono Township Fire Hall.

The Pocono Forestry Assn. is one of the oldest forest protection organizations in the United States. It had its beginning in the early 1900s. Dr. W. R. Fisher of Swiftwater, Sebastian S. Kresge of Mountainhome, Charles N. Thompson of Buck Hill Falls, John Segunee and Stewart Shick founded the group to provide a system of fire protection for the growing forest lands of the Poconos. Their motto was "Keep Monroe County Green."

This group saw the association grow with the enrollment of many persons, not only from the Pocono area, but of people from distant places who maintained summer residences here.

For years the association was guided by the late John Kunkle, a well-known local conservationist and educator.

Because of the important place an organization of this type plays in a forested area the revitalized Pocono Forestry Assn. is undertaking a program of conservation, education and recreation in the Poconos. The annual meeting on Saturday will acquaint the members and friends of the association with plans of immediate importance.

The banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will be served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the fire company. Thomas H. Knepp will serve as toastmaster.

Following the banquet a brief business meeting will be held during which time the nominating committee, Jacob Kintz, chairman, will present a list of nominees for officers and directors. Members of the association will have an opportunity to present nominees from the floor.

Eugene McNamara will tell the group of activities already undertaken and of plans for the future.

Following the brief business meeting there will be an address by Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters. Dr. Goddard is a conservationist and is well known in the Poconos for his interest in reforestation, flood control, and recreation.

Other distinguished guests will be Lloyd Partain, president of the Pennsylvania Forestry Assn. and a member of President Eisenhower's National Recreation and Resources Review, and Dr. A. C. McIntyre, project director for the Good Outdoors Manners Program.

Reservations for the dinner were closed on Oct. 15. Members and friends of the Pocono Forestry Assn. who do not have dinner tickets are urged to attend the business meeting and program that will begin about 7:30 p.m.

Western Show To Appear At Portland

PORTLAND — A bit of The Grand Ole Opry, America's oldest country music show, will be transplanted to the firehouse here Friday night when Stoney Cooper, Wilma Lee and The Clinch Mountain Clan, a featured act on the Opry, make a personal appearance.

Certain time is 8:30 p.m. E.D.T. The Opry show is being presented by Hook and Ladder Co., with the company's building fund benefiting.

Currently enjoying their greatest popularity in a long career in the country music field via three consecutive hit recordings, Wilma Lee and Stoney and their Grand Ole Opry troupe will be making their third appearance in four years here.

New Faces

There are some new faces in the group but they continue to present their usual wholesome, down-to-earth, family-type show, which includes singing, instrumental and group vocals interspersed with comedy routines.

The Portland appearance will be one of the first that Wilma Lee and Stoney have made since the release of their latest record, "There's A Big Wheel".

Draft Call Set

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Army recently announced a draft call for 9,000 men in December, the same as scheduled for October and November.

10 Tax Appeals Heard By Monroe County Commission

TEN TAX appeal hearings were heard by Monroe County Commissioners Monday afternoon.

Of the 17 scheduled, one was discontinued, another continued until next week and five persons failed to appear.

Held for further review were: Charles and Veolo Watson, 23 N. 2nd St., Stroudsburg, whose assessed value jumped from $1,000 last year to $2,450 in 1959; Anna Learn Estate of Florence Learn, 100-102 N. 2nd St., from $900 in 1958 to $2,250 in 1959; William Setzer, 70 N. 2nd St., appealed a jump in assessed value from the 1958 figure of $1,000 to $2,200.

Leo Feinsilber, 1805 Wallace St., Stroudsburg, appealed assessment increase of $9,000 in 1958, to $16,850 in 1959 on the Stroudsburg Woman's Apparel Shop at 615 Main St. The new appraisal, it was pointed out, actually means less tax dollars. Feinsilber paid $793 in taxes last year and will be responsible for $693 this year, it is reported.

James McConnell, 508 Scott St., Stroudsburg, objected to a jump in tax after he was out of the 20-day grace period. He said he received his assessment of $3,000 and then shortly after received another notice for $4,950.

Martin L. Buck, 1080 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, talking with the board was satisfied with his appraisal after adjustment from $33,095 to $28,684 on his business place and home. The 1958 assessed value of the property was $5,500 and jumped to $11,600 under the adjustment.

Richard Warner, 892 Scott St., appealed his jump from the 1958 assessment of $1,700 to the 1959 figure of $2,500; Joseph Barnes Jr., 427 E. Bryant St., Stroudsburg, complained of an assessment of $1,440 on a nonexistent recreation room. His 1958 assessed value of $1,800 was increased to $6,650.

Mrs. W. Adolph Rake, East Stroudsburg RD 1, appealed an appraisal change from $9,456 to $11,039 on a Scott St. property. She said her new assessment is $3,250. J. H. Stofflet, 904 Main St., Stroudsburg, appealed taxes at the People's Coal Co. holdings and the Frisbie Lumber Co., all part of the R. F. Kistler estate. The lumber firm assessment jumped from $3,500 to $12,650 and the coal company holdings was increased from $5,200 to $9,650.

Granges Feature Program

MILFORD — A talk and demonstration of Indian lore, dug up in the Delaware Valley, a white elephant auction and a hot ham supper were the highlights of the meeting last Saturday between the Monroe-Pike Pomona Grange and the Raymondskill Valley Grange No. 1742, with the latter serving as host.

A discussion of Indian lore followed the demonstration by Lyman Van Demark, the first president of the newly organized Lenape Chapter of the Society of Pennsylvania Archaeology. He was assisted by his son, Harold and David Warner.

The white elephant auction, which featured the sale of humorous items, was conducted by the Raymondskill Valley Grange with Sam Hindler acting as auctioneer.

Welcomed by the worthy Pomona Master, Fred Mathews, were State Deputy Master Alvin Blitz, State Juvenile Deputy Gladys Blitz and officers from the various granges within the two districts.

During the night session discussions were held on several of the candidates.

Candidates for the marching group are Charles Van Seiver, Fred Mathews, Abraham Hindlin, Sylvia Loux, Elizabeth Lyons and Christine Teachman.

Acting officers are: Master, Eugene Weiser; Overseer, Emil Laubscher; Lecturer, Gladys Blitz; Chaplain, Erma Hendler; Steward, Samuel Hendler; Assistant Steward, Edmond McEvoy; Secretary, Myrtle Laubscher; Treasurer, Alvin Blitz; Ceres, Anna Bralind; Pomona, Mayburt Crane; Flora, Kathryn Hindlin; Gatekeeper, Floyd Bralind; Emblem Bearer, Hazel DeGarmo; Scepter, Robert Crane.

Court Ladies are Martha Bradshaw, Susan Moureaux, Bertha Voelke and Catherine Powers and the Graces.

In other affairs committees were formed.

Mr. and Mrs. are often interested in DIFFERENT kinds of news. But BOTH turn to the newspaper as their fastest, most reliable source of information. And when it comes to matters that directly and importantly concern themselves, they count on the newspaper to give them the FACTS they need in order to make wise decisions and take effective actions.

Freedom of choice is basic to the American way of life. Freedom of the press is basic to freedom of choice. Without the accurate information on which to choose wisely and well, freedom of choice is meaningless. Your newspaper dedicates itself to keeping your channels of information forever open . . . keeping you up-to-date on everything on the local, county, state, national and international scene that affects your interests. It is, in fact, "freedom's textbook," providing the sinews of public debate and discussion on which democracy thrives.

You can buy this lovely home for only $15,000

We built this house on one of the nicest lots in East Stroudsburg six years ago. We lived in it for three years and then had to move to Oneonta, N. Y.

We liked the idea of going to Oneonta but we sure hated to leave this comfortable home. Everything about it meant home comfort. My wife was crazy about the automatic dishwasher in the kitchen sink. (Even I liked to do the dishes in this home. The utility room just off the kitchen is convenient too.

We used to like to sit in the spacious living room with a fire in the fireplace on a brisk winter evening. The wall-to-wall carpet throughout the living room, dining room and hall added to the warmth and comfort too.

A modern bathroom and three nice large bedrooms with spacious closet space added still more to our comfort.

Then outside we got a great deal of pleasure from the patios in the front and back of the house. A good size garage can be reached from a walk from the rear patio. The lawn and shrubbery add to the beauty of the home. And, the view from this property is one of the finest you'll see. It overlooks the East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium and the home is located only two blocks from the new East Stroudsburg High School.

The house is heated with oil in a forced hot air furnace and we spent approximately $150.00 a year to heat it. The taxes are low, too. Even since the new assessment they are not exorbitant.

Someone is going to get this place at a real price. We have several thousand dollars more in the home than we are now asking for it. But we must sell it now.

The home will be available on November 1st. It has been rented for the past three years but the tenants are leaving for service in Germany. We are not interested in renting it again. So, if you would like to live on Berwick Heights Road in East Stroudsburg get in touch with me, Elton Hall, Oneonta, N. Y. General 2-1000, call collect.

Dr. Rumsey To Direct Diabetes Unit

DR. EDWARD T. Horn, Jr., president of the Monroe County Medical Society, announced yesterday that Dr. John L. Rumsey will direct the 1959 diabetes detection drive to be held throughout the county Nov. 15-21. That week is being observed nationally as Diabetes Week.

"The immediate objective of the detection drive," Dr. Rumsey said, "is to find the undiagnosed cases of diabetes in Monroe County and to alert them to the need for medical care."

"The drive also has the broader objective of acquainting all members of the community with the symptoms of the ailment. It is an educational effort," he asserted, "and in no way is concerned with solicitation of funds."

Unknown Diabetes

There are one million Americans who have diabetes and don't know it, the chairman declared, and because the ailment often exists in hidden form, only the simple test devised for the ailment will disclose its presence.

"The detection drive is an alert, not an alarm," Dr. Rumsey stressed. "For the most part, diabetes is dangerous only when neglected. A diabetic who is found early and brought under medical control almost always continues to lead a normal life."

Among the danger signals which accompany diabetes are excessive thirst, excessive urination, loss of weight, intense itching, slow healing of cuts and bruises, excessive hunger, changes in vision, easy tiring and pain in the extremities.

New Class To Open At Art Center

THE Pocono Art Center is sponsoring one more class for children, starting this coming Saturday morning, Oct. 24.

Mrs. Frances Stearns will conduct a class in crafts for pre-teenage children, planned to particularly appeal to boys, says Mrs. Stearns, who is already well known as a craft teacher in this area, since she has conducted such classes before.

Mrs. Stearns, who is an artist herself, studied in the Cleveland School of Arts, and worked in settlement houses there, in craft classes and play-ground activities.

She has engaged in the same activities in Washington, D.C., and in schools and camps around Boston, including the Shawmut House of Boston, located in the heart of the colored slums.

Her class is set for 9 a.m. Saturdays, at the same rate as the other children's classes sponsored by the center, which is located above the Penney Store, in Stroudsburg.

The first lesson will be in handling mosaics.

Abandonment Of Track To Figure In Railroad Merger

ABANDONMENT of about eight and one-half miles of DL&W track, and about 95 miles of Erie track will become a reality should the proposed merger of the two railroads become effective.

The Erie Railroad's employee magazine revealed this in its October issue.

Most of the track considered for such abandonment is in New York State, the magazine reported, and is duplicate mileage.

However, the report also stated that merger plans call for the construction of nine new spurs to connect the two lines.

New Construction

Other new construction would be the building of a modern push-button freight classification yard in East Buffalo just between the two lines. Along with this the merger firm would add 11 tracks to the present seven at the Hornell, N. Y. yard. The report said the present DL&W line from Binghamton to Hoboken by way of Scranton would become the main passenger route. A total of 14 through line passenger trains would be dispatched each day.

However, from Hallstead to Jersey City, the firm would use the better grades of the Erie line for through freight service, while the DL&W's line to Scranton and the east would be used for local freight movement.

Hearings are presently being held by the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning the proposed merger.

THE ONE LOW-PRICE WAGON THAT'S ALWAYS BEEN FIRST WITH NEW IDEAS CAN NOW GIVE YOU A SOLIDER AND QUIETER RIDE THAN ANY WAGON COULD POSSIBLY GIVE YOU BEFORE. BECAUSE NO WAGON EVER HAD A DURA-QUIET UNIBODY BEFORE.

The Solid Plymouth wagons for 1960 are built a new way by Chrysler engineers. Body and undersills are joined in one enormously strong steel unit, locked by over 5900 precise welds. Plymouth's nine new suburban models are tighter, quieter, smoother than ever. They're roomier, too.

It took ten solid years of development to create this new kind of wagon... and after two minutes behind the wheel, we're pretty sure you'll say it's worth it.

Unibody construction is made for wagons. Doors, windows and tailgate fit better and stay tight. You save on maintenance because welded construction stands up better, with no conventional body bolts and nuts to work loose. Comfort of ride and ease of handling are noticeably improved in the Solid '60 Plymouth wagons.

See this big, beautiful wagon—and we think you're going to want it.

Built a new solid way to give you solid satisfaction.
